Fife Festival of Music has been a major part of the musical community of Fife since 1981 and provides platforms for performance throughout the area. Recently, an expansion has brought activity to three periods in the calendar year – see p.4. Festival platforms are visited by musicians of all ages and stages performing a wide variety of music. All sessions encourage audiences and there is a great raft of support for the Festival in the local community.

The Festival is run and organised by a voluntary committee assisted at events by volunteer stewards. Professional venues are used, and highly respected and experienced musicians of national standing are employed as adjudicators.

Although participants and performers are charged a fee to enter, in order to keep that at a reasonable level, other funding is necessary to allow the Festival to promote high standard events.

Funds are raised through Friends' Membership, Class Sponsorship, Donors and Sponsors, and Programme Advertising. Modest levels of giving from many people and sources provide FFoM with great support, both financial and moral.

In addition to the knowledge that your donation is helping a worthwhile cause, all financial supporters are welcomed into the Festival community.

Friends receive a complimentary copy of the 'A' period Programme, are invited to a special Reception and have an opportunity to give practical assistance in the running of events.

Class Sponsors can provide a message to celebrate an event, to dedicate a memory or advertise a business while supporting a specific class. Sponsors and Advertisers are given prominent mention in the Programme.

Programme Advertisers will have their product, event or message seen by large audiences and all participants in several venues.

Donors and Sponsors have the knowledge of their critical support of the Festival.
